

International Recommendations on Refugee, IDP and Statelessness Statistics (online, self-paced)

About the course

This course introduces three sets of international recommendations, namely: the “International Recommendations on Refugee Statistics” (IRRS), the “International Recommendations on IDP Statistics” (IRIS) and the “International Recommendations on Statelessness Statistics” (IROSS). The course is spread over six substantive modules and provides details on the statistical framework for compiling refugee, IDP and stateless persons statistics. It introduces concepts, definitions, classifications and methodologies relevant in collecting, compiling, analyzing and disseminating data and indicators on refugees, IDPs and stateless persons, including the Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) indicators.

Click here to access the full course overview.

Target Participants

Staff of national statistical offices, relevant line ministries and other institutions working on issues related to refugees, IDPs and stateless persons. Persons working on related matters in international or regional organizations and NGOs can also benefit.

Registration

Self Register and access the e-learning course directly or connect to the SIAP's e-learning portal and create an account to access. Click here for more guidelines.

At a Glance

Self-paced course with interactive lessons

6 pedagogical modules with integrated knowledge checks/assessments

60 – 90 minutes of seat time per module

Certificate of completion available for participants succeeding in final exam

